November 1, 2005, Washington, DC - " Crazy" and Ramblin'" written, produced, and performed by Breath AKA THE Dubber; and other songs will debut in Washington, November 19th, 2005 with a Video and CD Release Party.

With solo performances at some of hottest lounge spots in the country, from Philadelphia to Dallas, and Columbia, SC – THE Dubber takes most listeners by storm. With a soulful, hip hop, acoustic guitar, and a sound that CANNOT be defined by any genre you've ever heard; THE Dubber's album sparks of collaborations with BlackHeart, Koins Kaliber and Accurate1; while the vibe on each selection will take you through a story of life, rhythm and make you think back to an experience.

"In the Temple Of..." is THE Dubber's debut album. Though this is his first solo album, he is not a newcomer to the independent music industry. THE Dubber's played with bands from CA, to Washington DC, since early the late 80's

His creative, acoustic tone and vivacious voice will have listeners sitting in awe, as this artist mesmerizes the crowd, strategically strumming his acoustic guitar, with a rhythmic technique.

A self taught acoustic guitar player and vocalist; who independently produced "In the Temple Of..." – emerges on the scene like nothing the independent music industry has ever heard or seen. However, his validation comes from the thousands that hear him "live" and understand the importance of his "dubbing" (dub, meaning to rework).

A CD and Video Release Party, hosted by MoJo Productions, will accompany THE Dubber's debut music week, Saturday, November 19th in Washington, DC.
